

To the attention of
The European Society of Arachnology

Application letter for the selection as a member of the council of the European Society of Arachnology

Dear,

My name is Elena Piano and I currently have a post-doc position at the Laboratory of Terrestrial Ecosystems of the University of Torino (Italy), coordinated by Marco Isaia. I have been collaborating with his research group for 10 years, during which I could develop multiple ecological studies using spiders as model organisms, with a special focus on urban ecology. In particular, at the last European Congress of Arachnology, I had the opportunity to present my research with a keynote talk and to co-host a topical meeting.

I am sincerely interested in the possibility of being selected as a possible member of the council of the European Society of Arachnology. This would represent a great opportunity for me to actively contribute to the activities led by the Society. Thanks to my strict collaboration with Marco Isaia, who is in charge of the Newsletter together with Sara Goodacre, I could help by providing new contents that could be of relevant interest for the members of the European Society of Arachnology. In addition, I could also contribute by implementing some initiatives dedicated to young members that could help them in expanding their network or disseminating their research within the Society.

Thanks for considering my application to be selected as a possible member of the council of the European Society of Arachnology.

Sincerely yours,
Elena Piano